Peasants' Superstitions.

Now and then, not often, ghostly appearances or sounds are explained to the peasant's satisfaction. Thus in the county of Durham "Gabriel's hounds" were for long, long years believed to shriek and howl through the air on dark nights and to forebode death to him who heard and saw them. But prosaic modern research proved them to be nothing but flocks of wild geese migrating southward on the approach of winter and choosing dark nights for their journeys. Similarly the ghost of Trbydale, in the Lincolnshire wolds, a goblin who terrified travelers at night with its heartrending cries and who was said to be a witch who had been worried to death by dogs in a long past age, has been shown to be nothing but an owl. On the other hand, no true Cornishman will ever be inclined to relinquish the belief that the spirit of King Arthur still haunts the ruins of Tintagel in the shape of a white chough, and assuredly the many English families who possess a white bird of omen, such as that which John Oxenham saw in "Westward Ho," cling firmly to the tradition if not to the belief in it.—London Graphic.

The Will to Die.

Two or three years ago, in a Lancashire town, while a fair was in progress, to the proprietor of a steam roundabout there came a shopkeeper whose wife was lying supposedly at the point of death. "Then mun stop thy organ," he said. "Why?" asked the other. "Thou mun stop it, I tell tha'. My missus cawn't dee," was the reply, a dialogue for which the writer can vouch.

A clergyman had placed on record a similar instance. Visiting a sick parishioner, he was told by the doctor that the sickroom was full of mourners, assuring the woman that she was about to die. And the woman was dying from suggestion, though organically there was not the least reason why she should. The clergyman entered the room and cleared out the doleful ones. "You're not going to die," he said. "What! Am I not dying, parson? Then, thank God, I won't!" That woman was well in next to no time and round at the vicarage thanking its master for having saved her life.—St. James' Gazette.

Stropping a Razor.

"The idea that a razor needs frequent grinding or honing is not in keeping with my experience," said a man who shaves himself. "I have a razor that I got ten years ago which has never been out of my possession, never had any other treatment than stropping, and is today the sharpest and best of six. A razor can only be kept in this condition without honing, however, by using a hard strop that is, one which is rigid instead of flexible and not the kind that makes an arc of a circle when you use it. This latter sort will sharpen a razor for awhile, but it also makes the edge round until at last it ceases to cut. Why do I have six razors? Well, that is to use them in regular turn and give each one of them a rest. I shave every day, which I find the least troubles one method, and if I use the same blade every day it would soon play out. The edge of a razor needs rest, just like every other machine."

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

A BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

Rev. S. A. Lewis, pastor of the A. M. E. church, was greatly surprised last evening by a birthday party which came to do him honor, bringing many gifts, and also a purse containing a handsome sum was presented. Recently the pastor started cottage prayer meetings and on last Sunday evening when he announced this special meeting for Thursday to take place at Mrs. Anna Butler's, some one made a request that it be held at the parsonage. The change was made.

The reason for the change did not occur to the pastor, until his many friends came marching in a body with baskets and bundles, among which was ice cream and cake and many other delicacies of the season. After greetings, "All hail the power of Jesus' Name" was sung and a scripture lesson read and prayer offered by the pastor.

At the close of the devotional services presentations were made, after which the pastor in a few words accepted the gift and good wishes expressed by all present. He said it would be impossible for him to make a speech upon the occasion, that he was simply dumfounded and could not find words with which to express the joy and deep gratitude inspired by such tokens of friendship and appreciation and brotherly kindness. He said the heroism of the Christian Ministry was known possibly to only a few and that therefore only the few could understand what such occasions meant to the pastor. He said he had been a pastor for twenty-six years and as he looked back over these years he could find but one thing over which to boast and that was simply "A Savior's Love."

Mr. F. B. Catlin, one of the offices of the church responded in a very appropriate manner. He said in part he was very happy to witness such a scene as met his gaze, he was surprised to see so many persons present, he had not expected to meet such a crowd, but that he was glad and that it was the proper thing to do. Our pastor, he declared, ought to be the leading person in the community, but he can only be when we make it so, that kindly treatment and love and tokens of appreciation upon the part of the people served would bring from the pastor his very best and most efficient service and made him feel rather indebted to his parishioners. After wishing him as many more years of service and usefulness and that they should meet again on similar occasions, that part of the program closed.

Supper was then served by several of the ladies present. Several friends who could not be present sent gifts and greetings. The following persons were present: Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Catlin, Mrs. Mary Stevens, Mrs. Franklin, Mrs E. Fairfax, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. White, Miss Mayme Logan, Mrs. H. C. Johns, Mrs. F. C. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mansfield, Mrs. Pinky Lynch, Miss Melvina Ody, Miss Emma Smith, Miss Estella Jackson Mrs. W. W. Randolph, Master Oscar Stevens, Mrs. F. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Kitchen, Master Harold Lightfoot, Mr. J. A. Gomez, Mrs. Mary E. Catlin, Mr. O. P. Jones, Miss Lillian Lewis, Mr. James A. Lewis and Rev. and Mrs. S. A. Lewis. The happy party took its leave at 11:45, after a most pleasant and enjoyable time.

AT THE THEATRE.

In presenting the character of Sherlock Holmes in the "Sign of the Four" we get the real love story of the great detective. In this particular story of Sherlock Holmes series we see the famous man in a new phase of character fighting for the woman he loves The dramatist has made a most interesting play from the book, adding new characters and situations that make the story one of absorbing interest. Not only is the story of love and adventure thrilling situations and unusual climaxes, but there has been added some very bright comedy. Mr. Cambell Stratton the star of the production is supported in a very strong cast including Miss Gay Rhea. At Monessen opera house, Tuesday February 20.

The era of farce comedies that dawned years ago seems to grow brighter and more encouraging every season. A good piece of this class always finds a cordial welcome and increases the bank account of its owner and manager. This is what "The Irish Pawnbrokers," a three act farce has accomplished and Manager Joe W. Speare is delighted over the outlook of the present season. He announces this latest novelty at the Monessen opera house, February 21. Those original Irish comedians, Davis and Mack, appear in the stellar roles. There is magic in their names and more in their work. This team have won distinction in farce comedy. The company throughout possesses a high order of talent and cannot be easily duplicated. New scenery, new costumes, a lot of pretty girls, a variety of specialties, ect., are features of the performance.

The Irish Rain.

I must allow that it sometimes rains in Ireland, but Irish rain is not quite like other rain. It is, as a rule, softer than rain elsewhere, and if the truth must be told I like rain so long as one has not to say, "For the rain it raineth every day." Irish weather is not so much capricious as coquettish. It likes to plague you, if but to prepare you to enjoy the more its sunny, melting mood. It will weep and wail all night, and, lo, the next morning Ireland is one sweet smile and seems to say: "Is it raining I was yesterday? Ah, then, I'll rain no more." And the runnels leap and laugh, and the pastures and very stone walls glisten; the larks carol on their celestial journey; there is a pungent, healthy smell of drying peat; the mountains are all dimpled with the joy of life and sunshine; the lake lies perfectly still, content to reflect the overhanging face of heaven, and just won't your honor buy the stoutest pair of homemade hose from a barefooted, bareheaded daughter of dethroned kings with eyes like dewdrops and a voice that would charm the coin out of the most churlish purse? If on such mornings as these you do not lose your heart to Ireland it must be made of stern, unimpressionable stuff indeed.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Still Worse.

Him—What makes you look so miserable? Her—Why, do I look miserable? Him—Yes; you look as if your worst enemy had just been happily married. Her—Oh, it's ever so much worse than that. She has just been happily divorced.—Chicago News.

Father.

"I suppose I ought to ask your father for your hand?"

"Well, yes; it might please him, and it can't do any hurt. Of course it wouldn't be at all necessary if mother were home."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Reformed.

De Tanque — Guzzler hasn't been around lately. I wonder if anything is wrong with him? O'Soaque—I'm afraid so. I heard he was going to be married.—Philadelphia Record.
